Playing Together

The Playing Together program provides expert help for parents and children to develop social skills and friendships.

Learning social skills and having friends can help children feel happier and more confident. By sharing, taking turns and expressing their feelings, children learn how to play together and relate to each other.

At Noah's Ark, our Key Workers have experience and expertise in providing effective support for children through our approach to Everyday Learning and Therapy™.

We work with families so that siblings can get along with each other and enjoy playing together. We work with educators so they can learn new skills and strategies to encourage all children to play together at child care, preschool or school. Noah's Ark also works in the community to ensure that all children have the same opportunities to participate in community activities with their peers.
